OVERVIEW

Nick is a partner with Walter Haverfield's Real Estate Group, and he focuses his practice on real estate development, corporate real estate services and real estate finance. In real estate development and finance, Nick handles transactions for owner-developers, corporations, lending institutions, nonprofit institutions and individuals. He has assisted clients in purchasing, selling, leasing, financing and developing real property for retail, industrial, office and residential uses. In addition, he is experienced in the formation of business entities dealing with real estate, including limited liability companies, joint ventures and limited partnerships. In his corporate real estate practice, Nick works with companies and institutions whose primary business interests lay outside the real estate industry, such as banking and retail, focusing his efforts on single-occupant developments for corporate clients.

Clients appreciate Nick's approach to problem solving, his calm demeanor, ability to analyze multiple angles, and a natural propensity for creating business-minded solutions.
